Casket Girls

Hél (Héloïse)

An immortal vampire of devastating beauty and effortless charm, Hel has spent centuries mastering the art of being desired without ever allowing herself to be truly known. Beneath her polished, regal exterior lies a fiercely possessive and deeply lonely woman who has forgotten what it means to want something she cannot simply keep.

PEARL

Bold, perceptive, and difficult to intimidate, she moves through the world with a restless need for experience and a sharp, often irreverent edge. Beneath her adventurous exterior is a fiercely private, intensely perceptive woman whose restless mind keeps her moving even when some deeper part of her is searching for something—or someone—worth staying for.

MARGOT

(MARGUERITE)

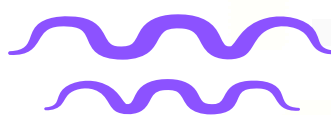

Warm, composed, and deeply rooted in the community, she works as a mortician, approaching death with the same reverence and care she brings to the living. Beneath her gentle, grounded exterior lies an immovable will, a sensuality as patient as it is powerful, and a fierce devotion to the people and places she considers her own.

VIOLET

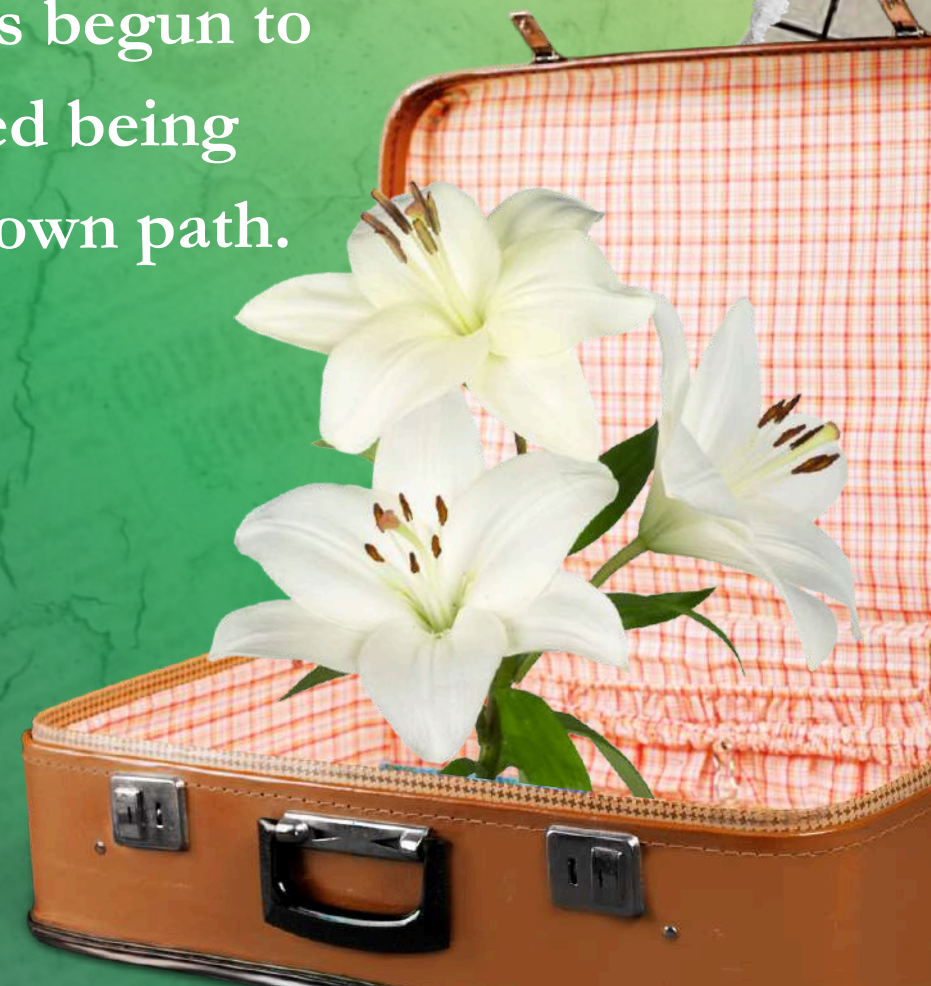

Elegant, enigmatic, and impossible to read, Violet has perfected the art of keeping the world at a carefully calculated distance. A Trans vampire with a fiercely independent spirit, she is both deeply attuned to the people around her and fundamentally unwilling to let anyone else define who she is.

EVA

The de facto matriarch of the Casket Girls, Eva has long been the one who keeps the others together, taking charge when decisions need to be made and shouldering the weight of their survival. But after centuries of putting the group first, she has begun to wonder what her life might look like if she stopped being responsible for everyone else and finally chose her own path.

“ADONIS”

Warm, grounded, and quietly magnetic, Adonis is a deeply loyal man whose instinct is to protect the people he loves and hold tight to the life he’s built. Beneath his easygoing exterior is an impulsive streak and a stubborn courage that makes him far less easy to scare away than the girls expect.

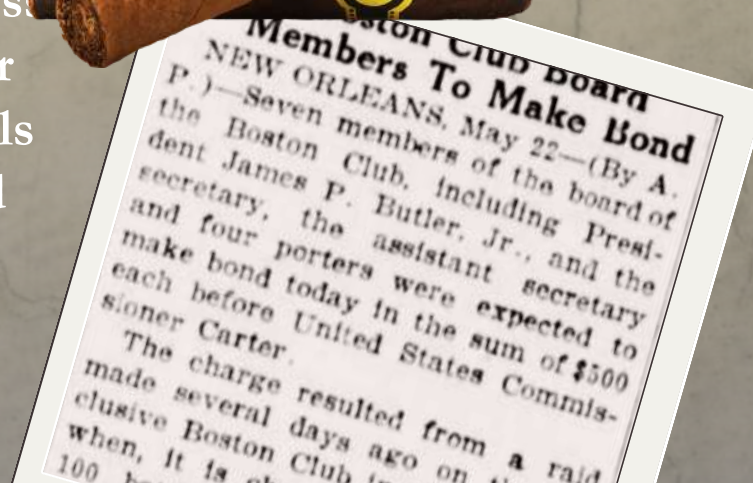

The Ursuline Convent

The Ursuline sisters have honored a pact with the girls, offering them secrecy and protection in exchange for their obedience to their terms. When the girls break their covenant, the nuns are no longer bound to protect them—and become determined to make them face the consequences.

The Boston Club

A clandestine society of New Orleans men who have spent generations cultivating wealth, influence, and access from behind closed doors. Now, their attention has turned to the Casket Girls—and the possibility that their blood holds the secret to immortality.

SISTER DOROTHY

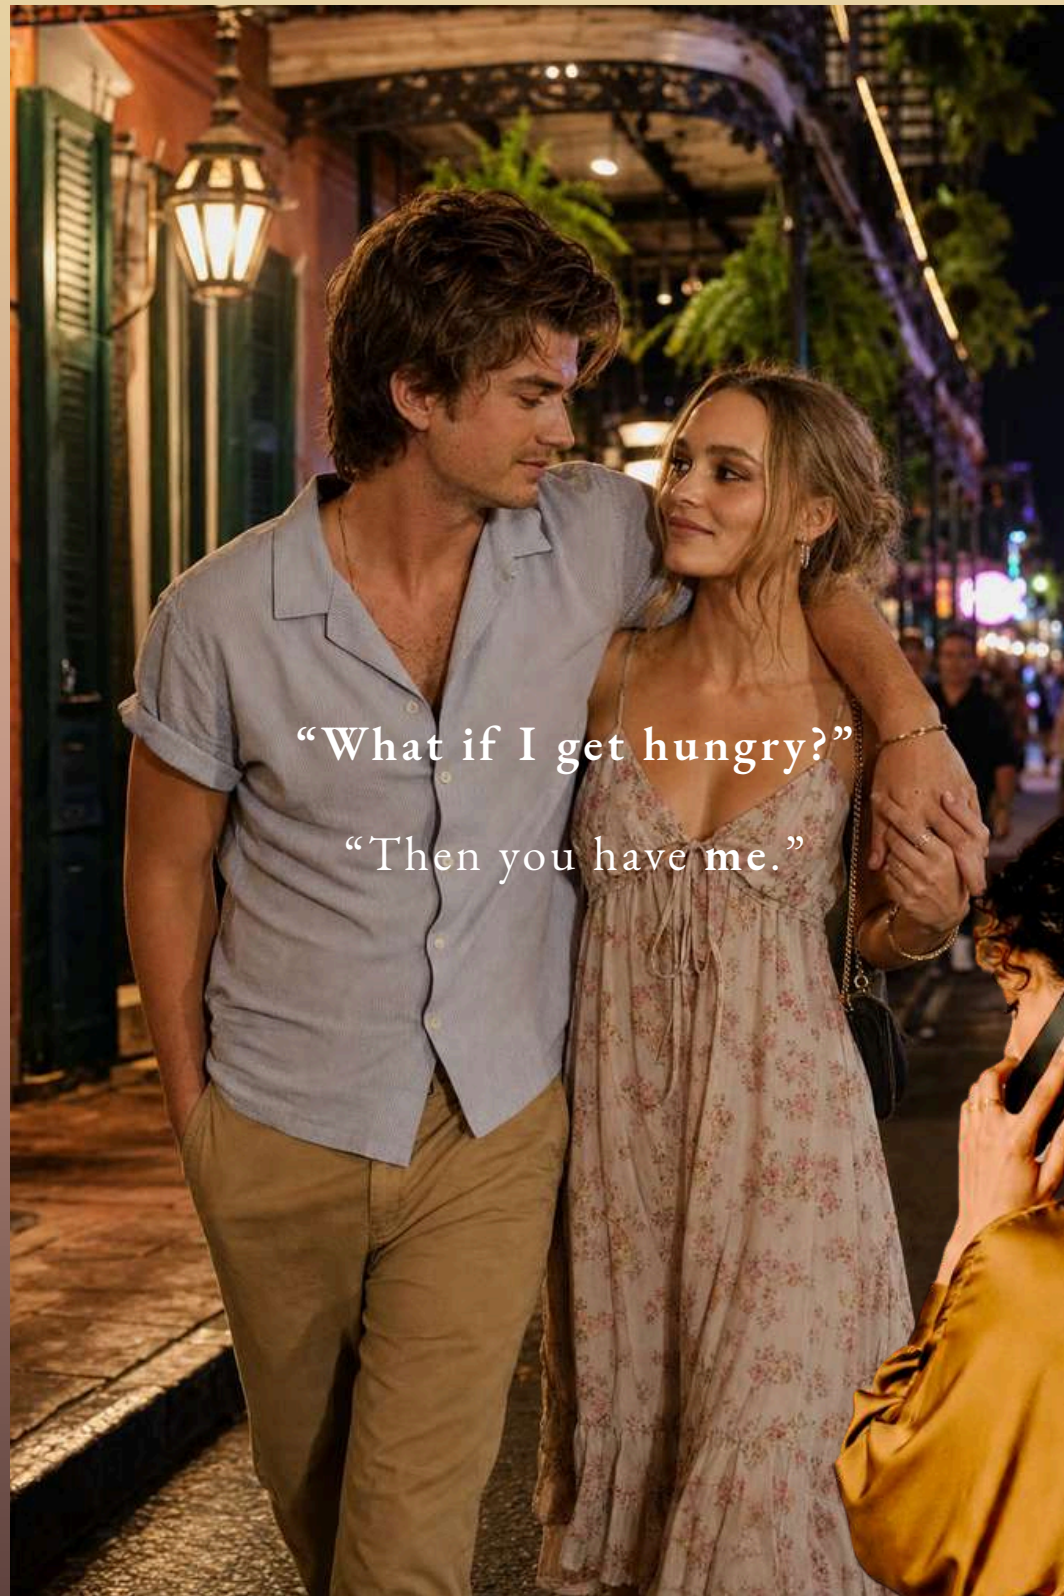

A devout Ursuline nun who built her life around her faith and the Church's teachings—including the belief that the Casket Girls are soulless creatures beyond salvation. But as her bond with the girls deepens, Dorothy begins to question whether her faith can survive—and whether protecting them might be the truest expression of it.

FORD

A privileged member of the Boston Club, living in a world where money, influence, and power have always opened doors—and he expects the same to be true with the Casket Girls. But as his involvement deepens, fascination gives way to something more personal, and the line between what he wants from the girls and what he's willing to risk for them begins to blur.

“What if I get hungry?”

“Then you have me.”

I don't mind the rain. But when it gets bad, always makes this place a little more crowded

You can do better, baby girl.
